History: The Nobles of The Mystic Shrine Bands

While researching something I came across this article by Major (Ret) Patrick W. Dugan dated September 2018.

Many musicians know John Philip Sousa composed the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine March, but few people know about the Shrine Bands raising money for the Shriners Hospitals for Children.

Every time people see a parade with all the many different Shrine units pass by, from the Shriners riding time little motorcycles, to the mounted patrols on horses, they are raising money to operate those hospitals.

Among those colorful and fun units, are several different bands and musical groups. If the mind can conceive something musically, the Shriners can make it into a Shrine unit, and put in their parades, either marching or riding. Some of the many types of musical groups they have range from four or five members to over a hundred.

Shrine musical units vary from Shrine to Shrine, but often have Dixieland Band, Steel Drum Unit, Pipe and Drum Unit, String Band, Hillbilly Band, Clown Band, Calliope Band, and Chanters (a signing unit).

The most common is what the traditionally call a brass band, which is often not a brass band, at all. It can contain a full compliment of woodwinds, but the name lingers on, from the earlier day. But make no mistake, they can play. Their ability level ranges anywhere from professionals in the musician union and music teachers to former high schools and college band members. They might march or today, usually ride a special-made "rolling bandstand."

The first Shrine Band was thought to be the Lu Lu Shrine Band of Philadelphia, whose 90 members made their presence known as they march in a procession on October 2, 1889, in Washington, D.C. The Lu Lu Shriners was chartered on June 4, 1884, and were the sixteenth Shrine to be chartered.

Another very old continuously operating Shrine Band is the Rajah Shrine Band of Reading, Pennsylvania, who has held pop concerts for the last 40 years and was chartered in 1896. The Sphinx Shrine Band of Newington, Connecticut, which was formed in 1899, is also among the first Shrine Bands.

The Pote's Troubadours is a smaller unit, which might consist of a handful of Shrine musicians riding on a special truck, playing some fun dance music. The instrumentation varies, but might consist of drums, keyboard, electric guitars, trumpet and saxophone.

John Philp Sousa and many other famous American bandmasters were Masons and Shriners.

Sousa petitioned Hiram Masonic Lodge #10 in Washington, D.C. and was raised a Master Mason in November 1881. He became a Shriners on April 21, 1922, in the Almas Shrine, also in Washington, D.C.

Karl King (1891-1971) was a Shriner in Za-Ga-Zig Shrine in Altoona, Iowa. Fred Jewell (1875-1936) was in the Murat Shrine in Indianapolis. Eugene LaBarre (1888-1956), soloist with Sousa and Pryor, was a Shriner with Moslem Shrine Band in Detroit. Merle Evans was an honorary member of 28 Shrine clubs. Henry Filmore (1881-1956) was in the Syrian Shine in Cincinnati, as was Herman Bellstedt (1858-1926). Frank Simon (1889-1967), assistant conductor and solo cornetist with Sousa, was in the Antioch Shrine Band in Dayton, Ohio.

The Antioch Shrine Band has many distinctions and connections with the Sousa Band.

Sousa Band clarinet player Joseph Franklin Saum (1889-1957) played clarinet in the Dayton Antioch Shrine Band after he performed with Sousa. His nephew, Ralph C. Saum, whom he taught, holds the record for the longest continuous membership in the Antioch Shrine Band. Ralph started playing in the band in the band on May 12, 1944, and is still active.

Ralph, along with his twin Brother, John, their father, Howard (1898-1983), and Uncle Joseph, all played in the Antioch Shrine Band at the same time. Ralph Saum also serves as assistant conductor and concertmaster for the band. Long service to the Shrine music is not unique. Antioch Shrine band member Kenny Lipps has been playing the bass drum for over 48 years.

John Philip Sousa was made an honorary conductor of the Almas Shrine Bank of Washington, D.C. The band would later be led by Kenneth Burton Slater (1917-2005). Slater came from a musical family. His father played euphonium in Arthur Pryor's Band. Kenneth, a member of Naval Masonic Lodge #4, graduated from the New York Military Academy and played in the President's own U.S. Marine Band from 1937-1947. From there, he played ten years in the newly formed U.S. Army Field Band at Fort Meade. During the 1950's, he conducted the Almas Shrine Band and won the National Shrine Band competition in 1955.

Alexander Robert Varela (1880-1933), Sousa's nephew through his sister Catherine (1850-1939), was a member of Washington Centennial Masonic Lodge #14 and worked in the banking industry. Varela, who had only been a Noble since October 14, 1921, was the first-line signer of Sousa's petition to Almas Shrine and asked his uncle to compose this march for the Shriners.

Sousa chose to introduce his Nobles of the Mystic Shrine March during their international meeting, which was held in Washington, D.C. in June 1923, part of which was held at Griffith Stadium. All of the Shrine Bands in attendance assembled in one massive unit on the grounds and formed the largest band Sousa had, or ever would, conduct in his long and interesting life.

Sousa conducted the 6,200 Shrine band members from an elevated platform festooned with bunting, located on the field near where second base would have been. Sousa appeared on the field to thunderous applause at 9:30 an, wearing a trim navy-blue uniform and a size seven and one fourth, red, Almas Shrine fez.

At five minutes after ten o'clock, Sousa lifted his baton and thousands of Shriners in the bleachers and the musicians on the field played and heard the Nobles of the Mystic Shine March for the first time. The Shriners went wild with enthusiasm and loved their new march and the man who composed it. Their thunderous approval prompted Sousa to have the bands play it again; which they did.

The audience wanted more, so Sousa conducted The Thunderer, which was thought to have some Masonic connection, after which he repeated it, too. Sousa conducted this march, his new march, and exercised his spectacular control over this massed band without even one rehearsal!

After the second time through The Thunderer, Sousa turned the baton over to William C. White, conductor of the Almas Shrine Band, who conducted America and The Star-Spangled Banner.

It should be no surprise, after Sousa became a Shriner and wrote this challenging and interesting march, about half the Sousa Band also became Shriners. Sousa was pleased with the march and would use it repeatedly on every tour until his death.

There are Shriners in every state and several foreign countries. Many of them have musical units whose presence at parades and Shrine Circuses raise the necessary funds to allow the Shriners Hospitals for Children to continue to treat children, regardless of their ability to pay.

No wonder the Shriners are referred to as Noble.

Major Patrick W. Dugan is a Shriner and past conductor of the Dayton Antioch Shrine Band. He conducted the massed bands in The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine March and the Thunderer at the 139th Imperial Session, International Council of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine at the Indianapolis Convention Center before a crowd of about 6,000 Shriners on July 3, 2013, commemorating the 90th anniversary of John Philip Sousa conducting the same event in 1923, where he first introduced The Nobles of the Mystic Shrine March.

A Message from the Chairman

Shriners Children's Ohio
BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Dear Nobles,

I'm dedicating this month's message to our 200 Shrine Centers across the world! They each devote a tremendous amount of time in their community to raise awareness and donations for the Most Amazing Care Anywhere!

I'm most familiar with my home temple, Yaarab Shrine. Located in Atlanta, Georgia, we have 50 clubs and units that devote the four months of the year to "hospital season." Our Shrine Circus, holiday parties, steak dinners, bucket brigade, golf tournaments and more help push Yaarab to be one of the top fundraising Centers in the system.

I hope you're also inspired by your Shrine Center and fellow nobles who devote their time, talent and treasure to kids who need our specialized care. I'm so proud of our more than 150 year history of having fun and helping kids.

A great way to celebrate our temples is to attend our Celebration Weekend on August 25 and 26. This is a perfect opportunity to see how Shriners Children's Ohio has changed the lives of children needing burn, cleft lip and palate or craniofacial care. We anticipate a large crowd so click here to secure your spot!

Save Your Tabs!

What is the “Pull-Tab Collection Program”?

Pull-tabs, or pop tabs, from beverage cans can be saved and donated to the Moslem Shriners. The tabs are sold to a recycling company and the money collected is used to help Shrine Kids.

Why collect the tabs and not the entire can?

Aluminum has recycling value, and the tab is the only pure aluminum part of the can. The can itself can still be returned for the deposit in Michigan after the tab has been removed.

Where do you deliver the tabs?

Tabs can be dropped off at the Moslem Transportation Bus Garage in Clawson. Call the Garage to make arrangements to drop them off.
